Description:

Student teaching experiences in bilingual schools in Costa Rica can provide students with essential skills and experience with working with EL students that they can immediately take back to use in classrooms.

During a clinical experience in a Costa Rican school, students have the opportunity to observe and assist in the classroom, lead activities, or teach a full load of courses, depending on their level of education and experience objectives. We can place student teachers in any grade level, preschool through high school, and any subject, including fine arts, computer science, and Portuguese or French.

During their experience, students will have the opportunity to observe technology integration, project-based learning, conscious discipline techniques, and other best-practices.
